NOTHING QUITE LIKE AN AA CHRISTMAS

Whatever holidays may have meant to us in drinking days, a real A.A. holiday is unforgettable for most of us — whether it is New Year's Day, Hanukkah, Thanksgiving, or Christmas.

"There's nothing quite like an A.A. Christmas," one member writes, "Maybe not the first Christmas you are in A.A., but certainly the first Christmas AA is in you."

A magic fills the air for everyone, but in an A.A.'s life it's very special, as his heart and life are filled with so many gifts. The gift of being loved, and of loving; of being understood, and of understanding; of being wanted, and of wanting; of being given to, and of giving.

"Money cannot buy these priceless gifts." An A.A. has love, friendship, an opportunity to contribute and add to the world, a feeling of belonging, and a desire to grow in A.A. so he will not have to reach for the first drink.

"As we look at Christmas lights we can look at all the enlightenment the 12 Steps have brought to us; of how we are now 'part of' a worldwide fellowship and are beginning to sense unity within through our 12 Traditions.

"We need never be alone again, need never reach for a drink at least today."

"As we look at beautiful Christmas wreaths we can think, too, of the circle of unending love and friendship surrounding A.A.'s triangle of Recovery, Unity, and Service."

We think quietly and gratefully of Bill and Dr. Bob and the other early A.A.'s — of the A.A.'s around the world now — of the Loners and our seagoing Internationalists — and say, "Merry Christmas to all, regardless of religious belief."

"Yes, Christmas is a special 24 hours for A.A. " The phone rings and it is a 12th Step call - a call for help. What greater gift can anyone have written from the pooled experience of 100 recovered alcoholics and given freely to any of us who wants to follow them to recovery. The Traditions, too, were evolved from the actual experience and activity of early A.A. — and given freely to us as guidelines to growth, and to unity — to 'at-oneness' with each other and the rest of the world.

"The aim of all A.A. service — of all A.A. giving — is identical with A.A.'s primary purpose — to give A.A. to all who want it."

Thank you, dear friend, for that lovely and thoughtful A.A. letter. And thanks, too, for all the other holiday messages we always are showered with here at G.S.O. Our Christmas prayer for all of you is Bill's favorite, that of Saint Francis:

"Lord, make me an instrument of thy peace; Where there is hatred, let me sow love; Where there is doubt, faith; Where there is despair, hope; Where there is darkness, light; and where there is sadness, joy.

"O Divine Master, grant that I may not so much seek to be consoled, as to console; to be understood, as to understand; to be loved, as to love; for it is in giving that we receive, it is in pardoning that we are pardoned, and it is in dying that we are born to eternal life."

BLAST FROM THE PAST

God's Hotel

I checked you in again
Last night my dear child
Because it hurt me so bad
To see you out there running wild.
All tired and worn out,
How you looked unto me.
I put a mirror in front of you
But you couldn't see
That you've been running alone
Among the last walking dead.
Sores all over your body,
Confusion in your head.
I know jail is not the place
That you wanted to be,
But it is my "Hotel"
A place where you can work
Upon thee.
You see, you weren't arrested,
You were rescued from yourself.
I had to bring you back here
Put your life upon a shelf.
Give you some rest, some new Friends,
And some time.
Encourage you and love you,
Let you know you are mine.
So don't be a mule led around by the bit.
Give heed to my warnings
And I'll help you quit.
This could be the last time

You'll have to come to this place.
Please just listen, I am your Father,
See the tears on my face?
I'll wash from your soul
All the shame from the streets.
Help you conquer your addictions,
All your pains I'll defeat.
Just give me your hand,
We will conquer the cold.
I will free you from the demons
Who have been stalking your soul.
So rest in the Hotel
I've prepared for your stay
But know you will come often
'til I've taught you My ways.
So learn my lessons
That your soul will be free
From the shackles
That Satan places upon thee.
You see you were in prison
Long before you came to this place.
You just couldn't see
How much life you did waste.
Come closer, I will help you,
Set you free from your sins
In my Hotel of true beginnings
Your new life will begin

PAMPHLET OF THE MONTH

It Sure Beats Sitting In A Cell

In Alcoholics Anonymous, there is no "right" or "wrong" way to get sober. The important thing is that we give it a try. The sharing presented in this pamphlet comes from alcoholics who have been in prison and have found a way to stop drinking through A.A.'s program of recovery. By following the example of A.A. members, both inside and outside prison, they have been able to change their lives for the better.

Alcoholism – and prison – can be a lonely business. We hope this pamphlet will help you understand more about how A.A. works and how we stay sober, one day at a time, wherever we are, from lifers to kids in a juvenile detention center. Getting sober isn't easy, nor does it happen overnight. But, for those who are willing, experience has proven that the A.A. program works.

Experience, Strength and Hope

"As an alcoholic, the real prison is in my mind. And while the physical restraints of fences or walls are only temporary, alcoholism is a permanent state that needs the dose of medicine that A.A. prescribes."

JOKE OF THE MONTH

After being married for 50 years, an older man took a careful look at his wife and said, "Do you know that fifty years ago we lived in a cheap house, drove a junk car, slept on a sofa bed and watched a 10-inch black and white TV, but I got to sleep with a hot 23-year-old-woman every night. Now, we live in an $800,000 home, drive a $60,000 car, sleep on a king size color TV, but I'm sleeping with a 69-year-old woman every night. It seems to me that you're not holding up your side of the bargain."

The man learned his wife is a very reasonable woman. She told him to go out and find a hot 23-year-woman and then promised she would make sure, once again, he would be living in a cheap house, driving a junk car, sleeping on a sofa bed, and watching a 10-inch black and white TV.

Aren't older women great? They really know how to solve old guy's problems!

ANONYMITY

Tradition Eleven: Our public relations policy is based on attraction rather than promotion; we need always maintain personal anonymity at the level of press, radio and films.

Some time ago, one of the volunteers in our central office hung a mirror on the wall, to which she attached a sticky note saying simply, "Are you an attraction?" This called to mind something I was told early in sobriety but haven't heard lately. An old-timer told me that before I became too proud to be a member of AA, I should be sure AA could always be proud to have me as a member.

I've never forgotten that simple piece of advice. When I am tempted to publicly display my AA membership it comes back to me. If I have a bumper sticker on my vehicle that the public associates with AA, does my driving reflect a sane, sober, spiritual person? If I'm talking about AA in a public place, does my behavior and appearance act as an attraction to the Fellowship? These are just two of many examples where that simple rule of thumb has helped me to examine my own behavior. I've never had an occasion when my periodic inventories revealed that I was consistently a perfect example of the spiritual principles of AA.

This same yardstick can be applied to the level of press, radio, and film. If I break my anonymity at the public level, or if I allow it to be broken by someone else by not informing them of our Tradition of anonymity at the public level, I am taking on the personal responsibility of being an example. Can I always be proud of the example that I set? Since I am still an alcoholic, and believe I always will be, can I be sure that I will never relapse? Have I reached such a level of pride-fulness that I think I personally have all the answers for every alcoholic who may look to me as the embodiment of AA?

All of us in AA are familiar with those public personalities--actors, athletes, and other well-known people--who have broken their anonymity at the public level, with the best of intentions, only to just as publicly drink again. I may think to myself, "I'm not famous, no one will look to me as a role model, no one will really be affected by what I do or say." But can I honestly believe that? True, the media will not widely publicize our sobriety or our lack of sobriety as it will for celebrities, but those who know us will observe our behavior and may be affected by it. This brings to mind another old saying in AA: you may be the only copy of the Big Book someone ever sees.

Years ago, through trial and error, experience suggested that our public relations policy should be attraction rather than promotion. This is true for our Fellowship as a whole and for us as individuals. Our Fellowship attracts a great deal of media attention, not because we seek publicity but because of our success in bringing about sobriety.

Similarly, we as individuals attract people to Alcoholics Anonymous not because we are out soliciting new members or shouting the good news from the rooftops, but because we are staying sober and the results of our program are evident to those around us.

This insistence upon attraction rather than promotion, and upon personal anonymity at the public level, has another aspect which may not be immediately apparent. It has the effect of reminding all of us of our essential equality. We all suffer from the same disease of alcoholism, and we all are provided the same opportunity for recovery. Those things which set us apart in society--money, property, prestige--have no place in Alcoholics Anonymous.

We sometimes forget that those members of AA who are well-known at the public level deserve the same opportunity to recover that we all share. We must not place expectations on them based on our perception of their success in the world instead of their experience with sobriety.

One of our well-loved AA members used to share the idea that ego was simply our separation from God and from our fellows. Our Tradition of anonymity reminds us that we are all a part of, and not apart from, the Fellowship of Alcoholics Anonymous.
